INTRODUCTION:

Look at the world differently

Anyone who will work in an advertising agency or with an ad agency in their careers will benefit from this course. Also, anyone involved in marketing of any product or service will find their career enriched by understanding the way of thinking in account planning. This will be a course heavily based on the practice of creating insights for advertising strategy.

Account planners are the voice of the consumer within ad agencies. They constitute the crucial link between client objectives, account management, and the creative development team, and also the media planning team. Account planners are strategists that are particularly attuned to the emotions and thoughts of the target audiences of advertising messages. As such, account planners need to know how to obtain valid information from the consumers of communications. Most importantly they need to know how to obtain key kernels of knowledge and emotion that will make advertising campaigns successful. After all, only advertising that sells the intended products, services, or ideas is ultimately successful.

Many ad agencies and clients have misunderstood the role of the account planner. Many have not taken advantage of this line of thinking in their organizations. This course has the objective of helping in the clarification of this role and empowering it to develop its full potential.

The list of topics below constitutes the schedule and list of assignments for the course. Active links in each topic represent required readings. Course assignments and their due dates are listed under each topic.

You can e-mail me here

OFFICE HOURS: Mondays and Tuesdays 1:30 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. and by appointment. Many consultations can be conducted over the phone or e-mail as well.

CLASS MEETINGS:
Tuesdays: 4:00 pm – 6:30 pm, 3116 Building C, University Center

FORMAT: The course is designed for active participation. Most weeks there will be assignments due where individuals or groups will make presentations to the class. Thus, a combination of lectures, interaction, and presentation of assignments to the class will be common during most class sessions. The "Library" on Blackboard will be used to make class materials available.

Student presentation and papers are to be submitted electronically via e-mail and at least 2 hours before class time the day they are due. See details below. Also, all papers must be brought to class for presentation and discussion.

Objectives:
At the end of the semester the student will be able to:

- Describe the function of an account planner in an advertising agency
- Explain the context of planning
- Identify the role of advertising in marketing
- Enumerate the perils of not involving consumers in advertising planning
- Practice the skills needed by an account planner
- Gather consumer input for the purposes of account planning
- Become a critical doer and consumer of research
- Obtain practice in generating insights from consumer speech and behavior in general
- Uncover the roots of truthful consumer thought and emotion
• Stimulate creative ideas through research or “creative development research”
• Develop an advertising strategy
• Compare different types of creative briefing and their attributes
• Develop creative briefs
• Gather opinions of creatives regarding creative briefs
• Rehearse how to avoid the perils of researching rough creative ideas
• Create the conditions in the advertising agency context for a successful strategy to prosper and capitalize on the synergy of all the parties involved
• Describe the role of the planner in campaign evaluation
• Coordinate with the media planning function
• Enumerate issues in international account planning
• Describe the potential role of the planner as consultant to clients and other communication industries

COURSE SCHEDULE, TOPICS, AND ASSIGNMENTS

Week 1, August 29

Introduction to the course and review of syllabus

Potential Guest Speaker
Assignment 1: Groups of about 5 class members each will be organized in class. Each group will research and prepare a presentation of two ad campaigns currently on the air/print/web. For each campaign the group will present at least one of its ads and will make best efforts to infer:

- The communication purpose/objective of the ad(s)
- Define the intended target audience
- The key consumer insight driving the ad(s) and the extent to which the insight is discernibly a cultural insight
- The persuasive mechanism being used
- The overall brand positioning being pursued

The presentations will be audiovisual and will last no more than 20 minutes. Due September 6

Read: Steel Ch 1, Cooper Ch 1,

MarCom Matrix by Bruce Bendinger, and

Week 2, September 6

Assignment 2: Each student will conduct an informational interview with an account planner of any agency in the United States or any other part of the world. The interview can be in person, by phone, or via e-mail. It is very important that the account planners interviewed be account planners as defined in this course, and they must work in an advertising agency. Interviews with account executives, account supervisors, account directors, etc. are not acceptable. A summary of the interview must include:

- How planners define their role
- What is the value of their contributions to the advertising process
• Identify how planners look at advertising objectives, or what can advertising achieve
• The student’s analysis of what the account planner contributed to his/her understanding of account planning.

Each student will prepare a short paper (approximately 2 pages) and will be ready to discuss his/her findings in class. As all assignments for this course it should also be submitted via e-mail to the instructor at least two hours before class on the due date.
Due September 13

Read: Steel Ch 2, Cooper Ch 2

Week 3, September 13

• The account planner as partner with consumers
  - What should the planner be like?
  - The need for the account planner in the process
• Understanding the role of advertising
  - Importance of defining what advertising is supposed to achieve
  - What can advertising do?
  - The planner as a definer of advertising objectives

Assignment 3: Groups of class members will be formed to select a brand and a specific business problem that needs solution. Students will research as much as practical the situation of the brand they are considering and will prepare a strategy PowerPoint presentation containing the analysis suggested by Leslie Butterfield in Ch. 3 of Cooper’s book. Students will present a group strategy, lasting about 20 minutes, and the class will discuss the issues brought up by each strategy presentation.
Due September 20

Read: Cooper Ch. 3, and

Week 4, September 20

- The advertising strategy
  - The business problem
  - The marketing mix
  - Analysis of the brand marketing in terms of customers, environment and competition
  - Definition of the role for advertising
  - Statement of objectives and strategy

Assignment 4: Groups of students will choose a product of interest. The groups will generate an observation/interviewing guide to conduct a minimum of three ethnographic interviews relevant to the product in question. The observational interview needs to take place in the environment of the interviewee. Each group will prepare a 20 minute presentation of findings to share with the class for discussion.

Each presentation must address:

a. Objective of the interviews in regards to the product/brand chosen
b. Main findings
c. Conclusions and recommendations given the objective

And show the observational interview guide used.

Due September 27

Read: Steel, Ch. 3, and Mariampolski Chs. 1-4, 5, and 6

Week 5, September 27

- Issues in research for advertising
- Why research?
- The issue of right and wrong questions
- The right questions asked the wrong and the right way
- The influence of the context of research
- Making people talk?!
- Quantification alone does not guarantee accuracy
- Knowing where one needs to go!

Assignment 5: Groups of students will generate one consumer insight that in their opinion can change how they look at a brand.

Each group will conduct any creative activity of his/her design with at least three individuals (consumers) relevant to a chosen product category or brand. A presentation will be produced detailing the problem, the activities conducted, the findings, and most importantly the insight found.

The insights will be presented and discussed in class.

Due October 4

Read Steel, Ch. 4 and Mariampolski Chs. 12-14, and 25

---

Week 6, October 4

- Stimulating creative ideas through _ - Research
  - Subjectivity
  - Experimentation
  - Using a wider context
  - A healthy measure of naiveté

Assignment 6: Groups of students will generate a creative brief following any of the templates provided in the books by Steel and Cooper. This 15 minute presentation will include:

1. The key elements of the business problem and strategy behind the creative brief. This could be the strategy generated earlier.
2. Insights derived from consumer observation/research
3. A creative brief that will fulfill the business objective
Due October 11
Read Steel Ch. 5, Cooper Ch. 4

Week 7, October 11

- Creative briefs and briefings
  - The brief as a means to an end
  - How briefs are used
  - The role of the brief in the creative process
  - Typical components of briefs
  - Simplicity vs. complexity
  - The briefing process itself

Assignment 7: Each student will interview a creative at ad agencies that have a planning function. The interview can be in person, by phone, or via e-mail or other Internet application. The resulting paper will cover:

  - How do creative people get ideas?
  - Describe the relationship of the planner with the creative team. How does it work?
  - What do creatives want from a brief? And from a briefing?
  - What do creatives dislike about planners?
  - What is the advice that creatives would like to give to planners?
  - And finally, your analysis and main takeaways from the interview?

This assignment is due for sharing and discussion in class on October 18.

Read Cooper Ch. 5

Week 8, October 18

- The creative’s perspective
  - How do they get ideas?
  - The importance of the relationship between the planner and the creative team
- What do creatives want from a brief, and a briefing?
- What is the follow-up that the planner does?
- What do creatives dislike about planners?
- Top tips for good planning

Assignment 8: Groups of class members will engage in the development of an overall advertising strategy, including:

a. The strategy development
b. Gathering of consumer insights
c. The development of a creative brief
d. Testing of creative ideas and further gathering of consumer insights in a focus group, ethnography, or other insight gathering tool, that will be conducted in class, or presented to the class.
e. Writing results, recommendations, and conclusions for the strategy and executions tested in the focus group

Each group will conduct a focus group, ethnographic study, or other insight gathering event, in class, or presented to the class with the objective of gathering the information in “d.” above. Each student will generate a 10-15 page individual paper addressing all points a – e above. This is the integration of all the activities and readings in one strategy paper. An example of a good paper is in the course library.

If focus groups are conducted they will last about 90 minutes each and will require the preparation of a discussion guide, creative stimuli, recruitment of respondents, and moderation. If ethnographies or other insight gathering events are conducted, an edited video of those events will be shown to class for discussion. The focus groups will be scheduled from November 1-29. The individual paper will be the final assignment and will due Friday December 9.

Read Steel Ch. 6 and Cooper Chs. 6 and 7 by October 25.

Week 9, October 25

- Creative development research
  - The perils of researching rough creative ideas
- Why do research at this stage
- Questions to be answered at this stage
- The quasi debate of qualitative vs. quantitative?
- Key measures

- Campaign evaluation
  - Sales effects vs. consumer effects
  - Relating advertising to sales
  - Advertising related responses
  - Brand related responses
  - Summative evaluation

Weeks 10, 11, 12, 13, and 14, that is November 1, 8, 15, 22, and 29. A schedule will be posted on Blackboard.

Focus groups, ethnographies, etc. for the evaluation of creative ideas and gathering of further consumer insights according to assignment 8 above. After each focus group, ethnography, etc., the class will discuss and debate the merits of the proposed campaign in light of the strategy and brief.

Read Steel, Ch. 7 and Cooper Chs. 8, 9, 10, 11, due by December 6.

Week 15, December 6

- Account planning and beyond
  - The “got milk” campaign
  - Account planning and media planning
  - International account planning
  - Account planning input in the client’s business (a consulting function)
  - Planning in other communication industries

COURSE POLICIES

Class Attendance:

Class attendance is mandatory. Since this course only meets once a week and it is of a participative nature, only two absences will be tolerated. After two absences 5 points will be deducted for each additional absence.

Assignments:

Due dates are clearly indicated in the syllabus. Assignments are due, electronically via e-mail, two hours before class on the day indicated. Assignments received later than that time will not be accepted unless prior arrangements are made with the instructor. The instructor reserves the right to deduct points, or disqualify, assignments received late.

Collective assignments require the active participation of each group member. If active group members detect lack of interest or participation by anyone in the group, they should exclude that person from the group before the assignment is due and notify the instructor. Lack of participation in a group activity will result in 0 credit for the specific assignment unless the individual completes an entire assignment by him/herself, or gets hired by another work-group. In the case of a student carrying out a group assignment as an individual project the assignment will be worth 2 points less, and the individual student will not make a presentation to the class.

Individual papers will generally be in Microsoft Word, and group presentations in Microsoft PowerPoint unless otherwise arranged with the instructor. Google Docs formats are always acceptable.

Very Important Notice - Each assignment should be named as follows:

Every file, that is a paper or presentation, must start with APF11[assignment number][first initial and last name of person, or group name]. For example, the file of Karen Smith's 18th assignment will be named APF11A18KSmith. Also for example, if a group assignment, assuming the name of the group is the Planning Wizards, the file of the PowerPoint presentation for assignment 21 must be: APF11A21PlanningWizards.

Also, the subject line of the email with each assignment must start with APF11 and a space after it, exactly.

Please read this carefully and follow this instructions. I will have an automatic rule in my mailbox to redirect your assignments to a folder. If they are not labeled as indicated I will not get them and I will not be able to give you credit. Please ask questions before it is too late.

All assignments must contain in the first page the name or names of the students and their e-mail addresses. If the name or e-mail addresses are not in the first page, I will not be able to read the assignment. I will appreciate your cooperation.

Exam:

There is an exam scheduled for this course that can cover any course material up to the point of the exam.
Extra Credit:

Students who prepare papers relating the content of selected recommended books to the discipline of account planning may obtain up to 2 extra points per book essay for a maximum of 4 points. Qualifying recommended books are marked with an “*”. The amount of reflection and thought reflected in these essays will be most important, and the extent should be of no less than 3 pages. All extra credit papers are due on December 9.

Evaluation:

Students' Final Grade will be based on the following:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Assignment</th>
<th>Percentage</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Assignments 1 – 7 at 6 points each for a total of</td>
<td>42%</td>

The School of Communication is committed to reducing grade inflation in its courses. To that end, a department-wide grading standard has been adopted to insure that an "A" is reserved for outstanding performance. "A" and "A -" grades represent work whose superior quality indicates a full mastery of the subject. An "A" represents work of extraordinary distinction.

The percentage of points required to receive various letter grades is as follows:

<thead>

Academic Honor Code:
Students are expected to uphold the Academic Honor Code published in The Florida State University Bulletin and the Student Handbook. The Academic Honor System of The Florida State University is based on the premise that each student has the responsibility (1) to uphold the highest standards of academic integrity in the student's own work, (2) to refuse to tolerate violations of academic integrity in the university community, and (3) to foster a high sense of integrity and social responsibility on the part of the university community. Students are required to provide references for all materials quoted or from which the student obtains ideas used in papers and presentations. References should be substantive enough so that anyone interested can find the material referenced.

Please see the following web site for a complete explanation of the Academic Honor Code:

Sexual Harassment Policy:

- Policy Statement. Sexual harassment is a form of discrimination based on a person’s gender. Sexual harassment is contrary to the University’s values and moral standards, which recognize the dignity and worth of each person, as well as a violation of federal and state laws and University rules and policies. Sexual harassment cannot and will not be tolerated by The Florida State University, whether by faculty, students, or staff or by others while on property owned by or under the control of the University.

- Office of Audit Services. The Office of Audit Services (OAS) is charged with receiving and investigating sexual harassment complaints as set forth in this policy and shall maintain the records pertaining thereto. Within the OAS, the Coordinator of Sexual Harassment Resolutions has primary responsibility for leading these investigations.

- Definition. Sexual harassment is defined as unwelcome sexual advances, requests for sexual favors, and other verbal or physical conduct of a sexual nature directed at an employee or student by another when:
  1. Submission to such conduct is made either explicitly or implicitly a term or condition of employment, academic status, receipt of University services, participation in University activities and programs, or affects the measure of a student’s academic performance; or,
  2. Submission to or rejection of such conduct is used as the basis for a decision affecting employment, academic status, receipt of services, participation in University activities and programs, or the measure of a student’s academic performance; or,
  3. Such conduct has the purpose or effect of unreasonably interfering with employment opportunities, work or academic performance or creating an intimidating, hostile, or offensive work or educational environment.
